

Technical rider for NOISTRAP crew (text)

(This document has a second part with pictures / layout on the stage)

Drummer:

- (9 mics and 4 lines and one monitor line back (stereo line back as monitor will be better)
- 9x Drum mics (should correspond with sound in club / stage)
 - Kick
 - Snare (up/down)
 - HiHat
 - Tom
 - F.Tom
 - 2nd F.Tom
 - Over (L/R)
- 2x ROLAND (2x TRS stereo out from SAMPLER)
 - 4x JACK / DI (2x stereo SAMPLER SPD-SX)
- 1x Monitor line
 - Drummer uses In-Ear, so only line into her mix is o.k. (can be a stereo line)
- 4x 230 VAC power

Bass Guitar player:

- 1x XLR DI out (for Gallien-Krueger 700RBII)
- 1x Monitor for musician 12"
- 2x 230 VAC power

Guitar Player:

- 1x Guitar mic (for George Dennis - The Blue 60)
- 1x Monitor for musician 12"
- 3x 230 VAC power

Keyboard player:

- 6x DI (3 Keyboards it means 3x stereo DI or similar solution)
- 1x vocal mic (SHURE SM58)
- 1x Monitor for musician 12"
- 4x 230 VAC power

Vocalist:

- 1x vocal mic (SHURE SM58/beta or Sennheiser E965 or similar)
- 1x 5m XLR cable (for connection between mic and her VE-20 vocal processor)
- 2x XLR out (singer uses BOSS VE-20 vocal processor, so stereo XLR out is needed)
- 1x Monitor
 - Vocalist uses in-ear, so stereo (mono) XLR line back for her will be good
- 2x 230 VAC power

Quick recapitulation:

- From stage to mix: 14 mic, 10x instrument line => 24 signals from stage to mix
- 5 monitor mono lines back from mix to stage (optionally in stereo: will be needed 7 lines (drummer and vocalist stereo, and the rest in their monitors mono ...))
- Power outlets for musicians: 15x

PA:

- I know it's always question, but our history says that 4KW is really minimum (and RCF / EV or similar audio equipment (not Behringer or "home audio"))
- PS: as you maybe know: our sound comes from the basement... and should be "thick"

Rehersal:

- It depends...
- But 20 mins should be ok for musicians and until 30 mins for soundman, but it always corresponds with "prepared stage and soundman HW/SW side"
